

CALL FOR PAPERS:

NEBRASKA LABOR SUMMIT 2025

March 28, 2025

University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Business
Lincoln, NE

The Economics Department at the University of Nebraska is pleased to announce the 2025 Nebraska Labor Summit, a one-day event devoted to discussing research in labor economics and related topics in applied micro. The conference will be held on March 28, 2025, at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Business in Lincoln, Neb., and will feature two keynote speakers: Marika Cabral, Associate Professor of Economics at the University of Texas-Austin, and Jesse Rothstein, Professor of Public Policy and Economics at the University of California, Berkeley.

In addition, the conference program will feature presentations of working papers submitted by scholars in areas related labor economics, broadly defined. More information on the format of the summit, including last year's agenda, can be found on the Nebraska Labor Summit website. To submit a paper for consideration, please submit an extended abstract or working paper in PDF format at <https://tinyurl.com/NebraskaLaborSummit2025>. For further questions, please feel free to contact the conference organizers at dtannenbaum@unl.edu or btimpe@unl.edu.

The submission deadline is December 1, 2024. The planning committee will finalize the conference program and notify the authors of submitted papers in early January.

The Nebraska Labor Summit is supported by the National Science Foundation, the University of Nebraska College of Business, and the University of Nebraska Department of Economics.